until given the command because a dog with impaired vision may not see barbed wire. Such a dog will also work more confidently is he can hear his owner; some owners therefore keep up a running commentary for the dog. Since such a dog tends to have difficulty finding his owner on return he needs to be guided by a combination of voice and movement.

Even though the Labrador is a cheerful dog one with failing eyesight may become sensitive to excitement, tension and friction in the atmosphere surrounding him. He cannot see his owner's face and can be reassured only by voice and touch. It is necessary to take care to give the dog a reasonably peaceful existence. The author points out that stress and fright have an adverse effect on any residual ability to see as well as on the other faculties. Such loss of faculties passes, however, with the end of the stress period, and the ability to see returns to its previous level.

The author maintains that an affected dog may retain his capacity for enjoyment and often may even appear to be normal in both behavior and appearance of the eyes. She describes one dog who was seven and a half before he gave any noticeable sign of blindness. His eyes, though sightless, still appeared to express anticipation of a biscuit held in front of him but which he detected through scent alone.

In summary the author states, "...it need hardly be said that PRA should not be considered in isolation, and to the exclusion of those qualities which characterise the Labrador (with particular reference to temperament, physique and working ability). Freedom from hereditary defects is a vital necessity for the healthy continuance of a breed, but it is of paramount importance that in the effort to eradicate PRA the inherent qualities of the Labrador are not lost or jeopardised."

POPULATION BOMB: CANINE DEPARTMENT Louise Marsh

By now all of us are familiar with the metaphor of the population bomb, the threat posed to human life and the environment by the exponential growth in human numbers. That is not the whole story, however. Along with man goes his best friend in ever-increasing numbers also. Frequent articles and news items in recent months indicate that here is a problem to which dog breeders and owners must address themselves.

Consider the statistics. In 1973 the Animal Protection Institute spent approximately 500 million dollars to capture, shelter and often kill about 12 million dogs and 7 million cats. The Humane Society says that there are a minimum of 50 million atray cats and dogs in the United States. In Britain the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals estimates that in the last 10 years the average increase in the canine population has been more that 4% a year, a higher figure that the annual human population increase. Becci Sanderson, in the January, 1974, issue of Front and Finish pointed out that in 1972 more than 15 million animals were destroyed by humane societies and cities in the United States because there were not enough homes for the animals that were born. In addition, she wrote, were the 1 million killed daily on highways. The total of 380 million animals killed because of careless owners and overbreeding does not include those who were simply abandoned and did not happen to be run over or caught and destroyed.

There are other ominous signs as well. All of us are familiar with the increasingly restrictive laws pertaining to dogs in many jurisdictions. Probably they make little difference to most of us because we did not let our dogs run loose or deficate in our neighbor's yard or on public property anyway. Nevertheless, according to the ordinance in Montgomery County, Maryland, a dog owner is now obliged to clean up after his pet in public parkland while a person riding a horse on the same paths has no such obligation. Suggestions that dogs consume food that should go to feed human beings are becoming more numerous. All of these things—the statistics showing uncontolled breeding with resulting suffering and death, the restrictive ordinances and the growing resentment of any species which may compete with man for food—add up to a problem which dog breeders and owners must face.

I am sure that every one of us has wished for a pup that would carry on the outstanding qualities of mind and body of an older dog who has shared our lives. For others breedis simply a business. But does either sentiment or the hope of a profit justify permitting a breeding to take place which will contribute nothing to the breed and will produce puppies for which there may be no homes? Those of us who love purebred dogs have a responsibility too.

JULY 21 LRCP MEETING

The "People Bicnic and Judging Contest" held at Mrs. Elizabeth Clark's Springfield Farms on July 21 was a huge success with 50 members present. Dogs for the judging contest were provided by Springfield Kennels, and members got a chance to match their judging skills against those of an expert, Mrs. Dianna Beckett, who explained the reasoning behing her ranking of the dogs.

At the business meeting held in conjunction with the picnic plans were completed for our September 8 match. Also judges were selcted for the three judging assinments for the National Specialty which this club will sponsor at the Rock Creek Kennel Club Show in 1975. The list of those selected is as follows:

Sweepstakes: Jerry Weiss, Huntington, New York P. Carl Tuttle, Rectorstown, Virginia William A. Metz, New City, New York

Principal Judge: Miriam Kinsella, England Mary Roslin-Williams, England Mrs. Robert Heptworth, England

Second Judge: A P. Carl Tuttle, Rectorstown, Virginia Mrs. James Edward Clark, Cecilton, Md. Winifred Heakmann, Ellicott City, Md.

The Principal Judge judges bitches, intersex and all non-regular classes. The Second Judge, or Dog Judge, judges the regular classes.

The nominations were sent to Mrs. Helen Ginnel, Labrador Club Bench Show Chairman, who asked this club to notify the members of her committee of our recommendations. The Rock Creek Kennel Club will contact these judges and, subject to AKC approval and availability, will assemble a penel.

Plans are currently underway to hold a Working Certificate Stake in conjunction with the Speciality as well as a Club dinner. The LRCP plans to advertize its sponsorship of the 1975 National Specialty in a number of show catalogs during the coming year.

SUGGESTED STEPS TO BE TAKEN IN THE EVENT OF LOCAL ANTI-DOG ENFORCEMENT

The following text outlines methods of inquiry and enforcement which may be used by local officials in attempts to enforce anti-dog ordinances in your community. Following each description of a method of enforcement or inquiry are suggested techniques of response. These techniques are entirely legal and based upon the rights of citizens as stated by the U.S. Constitution.

A. Telephone inquiry or threats You may receive telephone inquiries concerning the number of dogs you own and whether any dogs or puppies are for sale. Other questions may also be asked.

Your response should be to inquire "are you interested in a puppy?" If the answer is yes, ask that person for his name and address and phone number and suggest that you or a responsible breeder will contact that person at a more convenient time for you. If the answer is friendly and genuinely inquisitive, invite the person out to look at your puppies. If the question is asked "what price is each puppy sold for," simply say that "puppies of this type are sold for between X dollars and X dollars in price." Never say that you are selling them. If the question is asked "are these your puppies" your answer should be "why do you want to know?" If your conversation indicates that the person is representing the county clerk's office or alledgedly representing an official body, ask the caller for his full hame, title, and phone number, his supervisor's full name and phone number, the full name of the agency and the full address of the agency. Then ask the caller for the nature of the inauiry (what is it about), what the inquiry is being made and how the caller obtained your name and phone number. Then ask that all future questions from that agency be submitted in writing.

If you believe you're being harrassed, do not give your address or your name; it is not your problem to send the letter. Make a complete record in writing of the date and time of each phone call and all the information that was requested by you and the caller. Keep these records with your dog records so that they may be referred to in the future.

Under no circumstances should you volunteer information or admit any action which may be in violation of the ordinances over the telephone. You should not attempt to mislead or otherwise lie to a caller nor should you treat such a caller with any more respect than you would a magazine salesman. You do not have to incriminate yourself nor make any admissions of a potential criminal action under the 5th amendment of the U.S. Constitution and you should certainly not make such statements over the telephone.

Do not bother calling back to verify identities or information simply because you are requested to (you are under no obligation to spend money to aid a criminal investigation of yourself).

B. Personal Investigation If you are confronted with some official demanding to investigate your property, the following responses are recommended.

If the person presents a badge, you should again ask for his full name and phone number, his supervisor's full name and phone number, the agency which he represents, his badge number and why he is there to see you. You should also ask him if there are any complaints involved and who made these complaints (he probably won't answer this last question). You should also inquire whether or not he has a warrant for a search and request a copy of that warrant (he probably won't have a warrant).

You should answer no questions but ask that he send or deliver all questions in writing. You should write down the answers to all of these questions as the conversation proceeds. A simple notebook will do the job magnificently.

If you feel that a search of your home will lead to threatened confiscation of a dog or a criminal complaint, you should refuse entry to your home unless the sheriff or police are present with a search warrant. If he says that he can get one easily, then tell him to do so. Remain cool and polite. Call your attorney as soon as possible.

If you are faced with a threatened seizure without court hearing or court order, call the police immediately. Also obtain the names of all persons involved, including the police officers. This may prevent seizure. Please understand that seizure of property, without due process of law, is unconstitutional and due process of law should include a court hearing in every action relating to such seizure. If the animal control officials or police seize a dog, they may not destroy the animal nor harm him in any way until a judge has ruled that you are in violation and this can only occur after a full hearing.

Call your attorney at the time of threatened seizure and ask his to help you. Do not volunteer any dogs or other property.

Call other breeders in the area to warn them and inform them of the occurrences.

ANTI-DOG ENFORCEMENT, concl.,

C. Cooperation Remember that cooperation will not usually avoid prosecution. Also remember that seizure of one of your dogs without court action, under protest, amounts to prosecution without trial. I repeat, anything you may say or do in regards to the attempted seizure or inquiries may be used against you in a criminal or quasi-criminal action. Everything you say or do will probably be used against you. Write down everything that is said and occurs as it happens or as soon after as you can. These notes can be valuable evidence to defend yourself at a later time.

Try to avoid anger and awoid violence at all costs.

Try to obtain as much information as you can (the informers, enforcing officials, officers, etc.). Require enforcing officers and officials to put everything in writing. They may not do it, but you can ask.

po not be affair and remember you must assert your rights to protect them. If you are responsibly breeding and owning dogs and not creating a nuisance or an unsafe situation for others, then you are conducting a wholesome activity in raising high-quality pets and hobby animals. Dogs are not evil or criminal by themselves. Dogs are one of man's oldest companions. Do not feel ashamed of your activity and do not admit the so-called "responsibility" of purebred breeders for stray dogs or unhealthy conditions in other parts of the city.

(This advice was addressed to Mr. Duncan Wright of the American Dog Owners Association.)
